

Seth Cantey

Seth Cantey is a doctoral candidate in the department of political science at Duke University, where he studies issues related to international security. His dissertation explores the conditions under which negotiations with terrorist organizations may be effective. A 2012 Manfred Wörner Fellow, Seth has received 4 FLAS fellowships from the US Department of Education in the past 4 years. He holds advanced degrees in political science and Latin American Studies from Duke and Georgetown, respectively, and a BA in Psychology and Spanish from Bucknell, where he was awarded the Helen E. Sprague Prize in 2003.

