

Daniel Twining

Daniel Twining is Senior Fellow for Asia at the German Marshall Fund of the United States, a thinktank and foundation based in Washington, DC, where he leads a 16-member team working on the rise of Asia and its implications for the West. He previously served as a Member of the Secretary of State's Policy Planning Staff, where he was responsible for South Asia and regional issues in East Asia; as the Foreign Policy Advisor to Senator John McCain, for whom he handled foreign and defense policy in the United States Senate; and as a staff member of the U.S. Trade Representative. Dr.

Twining has also served as senior policy advisor and foreign policy spokesman for several presidential campaigns. He holds a doctorate in International Relations from Oxford University, where he was the Fulbright/Oxford Scholar for three years; an M.Phil. with distinction in East Asian international relations from Oxford; and a B.A. with highest distinction from the University of Virginia. He is currently working on two books: one on American grand strategy in Asia after the Cold War, and the other on the impact of the rising powers on the 21st century international system. Dr. Twining writes regularly for leading publications in the West and Asia. He has lived in Asia, Latin America, Africa, and Europe.
